Started as an online community for artistic support, Nineteeneighty brings together a group of eight young artists who work in distinct styles and media yet share a common comical dialogue. Kirsten Deirup, who's preparing for an upcoming solo show at Rare, headlines the exhibition with her naive, fairytale-like paintings. Exemplifying the troupe's adventurous aesthetic, show organizer Kadar Brock explores dark, religious undertones with punchy colors on canvas, while Matt Jones mixes a raw painting style with a cartoon attitude representative of the offbeat humor that keeps this art club's visual conversation lively.
